

For immediate release:

“L”

What is one character longer than untitled?

A new album by quirky old folky/bluesy/rootsy/indie dude, Todd Pierce

Melbourne, Australia 10 April 2017

Todd had a milestone birthday. A terrifying milestone birthday. The birthday made him feel confused and afraid.

Luckily Todd had received a beautiful new acoustic guitar for his horrible birthday. He played the guitar and the songs started to pour out. Sad and funny songs about feelings. Sad funny songs about realisations and wise things. Staring down at this frail baby travel guitar, Todd knew now what he had to do. So, he spat in his hands in a comical old-timey way, downed a couple of neat whiskies the way old men do, pulled his old man pants all the way up to his belly button, and set himself to the task at hand.

The result after over 16 months of solid slog, is this simply beautiful little album of fourteen simply beautiful little tracks, of introspective, funny, midlife, indie folk roots rock pop.

As with all prior releases Todd recorded this album primarily at his home studio, FrogLab. In a break from tradition he scored the help of '80s keyboard sensation Dean Walliss (Talk That Walk, The Church) as co-producer. Other notable players include sousaphone everywhere man Aaron Richard (Jules Boulton, etc), classical/folk violinist Ingrid Homburg (MSO, Ungus Ungus Ungus), notable jazz saxophonist John Zappia (everything, just about) and soul singer Mimi Turner (ex-Groovettes).

Todd Pierce, you say?

Todd Pierce is a Melbourne-based singer/songwriter and multi-instrumentalist. He has been kicking around for decades in various Melbourne bands as singer, guitarist or bassist. His work is informed by a range of styles from indie to folk to blues to rock. His EP Little Songs received wide-ranging radio play Australia-wide. This is his second full length album and his fifth major release.

Todd Pierce: www.facebook.com/toddpiercemusician
FrogLab: froglab.com.au
Promo vid: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=S-0xok6ultk>
Contact: todd@sockettome.com / Todd Pierce 0407 870 660

